Mexa

There are objects that are born from a shape, and others that are born from a way of understanding how we want to live. This collection is born from a return to the essential: a light structure, an artisanal gesture, and the desire to create pieces that naturally belong in the outdoors.

the harmony of leather and wood

Set out with the idea of a comfortable, minimalist chair featuring wood with a design that is simple yet dynamic, cheerful yet dignified. It is a compact chair where distinctive elements harmonize with the curves that define its overall form.

Depending on your preference, you can change the surface and fabric options for both sides and the frame.

Katto emerged from the coming together of contrasts. It has a structure where rounded and sharp elements of the form, following solid and void spaces of the structure with a continuous yet shifting line, integrate into a unified whole body.

Our design are also in harmony

Fluidly intersecting curved contours and organic surfaces form the collection's fundamental design language. The metal structure, with its clear graphic expression, is balanced by tactile details that reveal traces of craftsmanship.

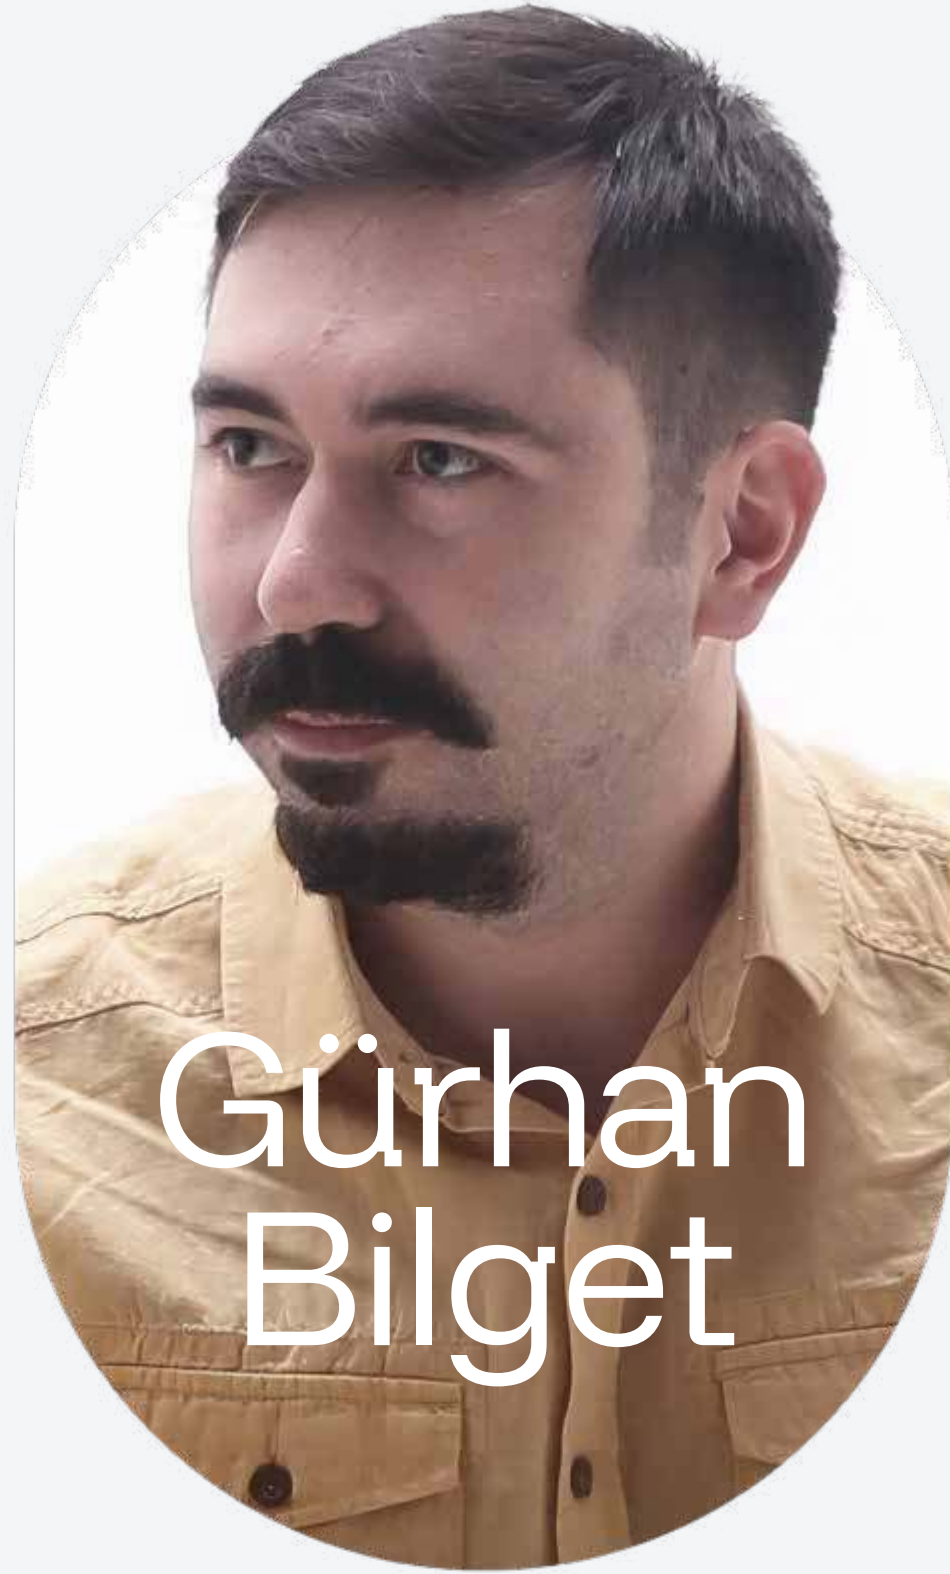

Discover the Ma family, featuring a chair, an armchair, an berger chair, and a bar stool.

Edge finishing elements, which allow accessories and garments to be hung, add both visual and functional richness to the design.

Elegant touches

Pole

Pole was born from the foundations of yin and yang philosophy.

In this philosophy, opposites need each other, interconnected and transform into each other. There is an absolute balance between them.

Its oval shape embraces you comfortably, helping you enjoy a pleasant experience.

It tells woman and man, good and bad, right and wrong. It reminds the user of spiritual balance. It offers a comfortable sitting experience.
